Griffith's Primary Valuation of Rateable Property in Ireland is commonly known as Griffith's Valuation. Between 1848 and 1864 all the land of Ireland was surveyed, under the direction of Richard Griffith, for the purpose of establishing the level of rates (local tax) payable by each landholder or leaseholder. The Griffith Valuation lists a majority of land- or house-holders in the country giving the townland and description of the property (e.g. land; house; land and house; or house, outoffices/out buildings, and land). It also lists the landlord and the annual valuation. The Valuation is based on the Area (A - Acres, R - Roods, and P - Perches). The value of the land and buildings are in £ - Pounds, s - Shillings, d - Pence.

What's a Rood?

The acres used in Griffith's Valuation are "English" acres, as opposed to "Irish" acres. An English acre is composed of 4 roods, and one rood is composed of 40 perches. A perch is equal to a square rod and a rod is equal to 16.5 feet. Thus;

a perch is equal to $16.5 \times 16.5 = 272.25$ square feet a rood is 272.25×40 perches = 10,890 square feet, an acre = $10,890 \times 4$ roods = 43,560 square feet.

(Note: An Irish acre is about 1 and 2/3rds the size of an English acre.)

Because of the shortage of other records this is a very important 'census substitute', even though it does not list the age of the landholder or names of family members. Here are the years the Valuation was completed for each Irish County. Most of the Valuation was completed after the years of the Great Irish Famine and following a large emigration from the island beginning from 1846 to 1852.
